

LUBRICANT CIRCULATION SYSTEM AND METHOD

Abstract of the Disclosure

[0036] A lubricant circulation system and method are provided for circulating lubricant used to lubricate the interface between a rotating member and a stationary member. Lubricant is drawn from a lubricant source and delivered to the stationary member. The system and method utilize the pressure generated by rotation of the rotating member in the stationary member to drive the lubricant through the stationary member and back to the lubricant source.